Enquiries and complaints to the Public Service Commissioner and Office of the Public Service Commissioner (OPSC)

Matters handled by the Public Service Commissioner

The Public Service Commissioner has certain powers to act in relation to matters relating to NSW government sector agencies. For example, the Commissioner may:

- issue directions for the purposes of exercising the Commissioner's functions or ensuring compliance with the Government Sector Employment Act 2013 (GSE Act), regulations or rules
- require a NSW government sector agency head to provide a report on matters relating to the employees or the employment policies and practices of the agency
- conduct an inquiry (or appoint someone else to conduct an inquiry) into any matter relating to the administration or management of a NSW government sector agency

The Commissioner has discretion to determine whether a complaint warrants the exercise of any of the Commissioner's powers, and is not required to conduct an inquiry. Please see the Guideline: Inquiries into the administration and management of government sector agencies for further information about the Commissioner's inquiry power.

The Commissioner does not have power to investigate or conciliate individual complaints about decisions by NSW public sector agencies or how they deliver their services or perform their functions.

- The Commissioner does not review or conciliate agency decisions in relation to individual employment matters or provide individual employment advice to current or former employees.
- The Commissioner does not review or conciliate agency decisions relating to services provided by an agency to a customer or member of the public.

Important note about individual complaints about NSW public sector agencies and where to get help

You should normally raise any complaint directly with the NSW public sector agency concerned, or with an oversight or enforcement body (for example, an investigating authority) with power to deal with your complaint, as they are normally best placed to resolve the matter.

Please see the table below for more guidance. Please note that this information may not be complete or necessarily apply to your particular circumstances.

Public interest disclosures (PID)

A PID is a report by a public official about serious wrongdoing by a public authority or public official. Serious wrongdoing means corrupt conduct, a government information contravention, a local government pecuniary interest contravention, serious maladministration, a privacy contravention or a serious and substantial waste of public money.

The NSW Ombudsman provides advice and guidance to public sector staff about reporting serious wrongdoing.
